Preface to 1st Edition.

1.—To Children.

This catalogue shows the names of all the books in the Juvenile Library, New Bridge Street. The name of the book is printed in ordinary letters, but the name of the writer is in dark letters. For instance, if you want to know the number of "Winning his Spurs," by Henty, you can find it either under "Winning," which is in ordinary type, or else under "Henty," which is in dark type.

You can always tell which are story books and which are not, even when the title is not very clear, because those which are not story books have a date after them, or else the letters n.d. (no date).

The date shows you in what year the book was printed—it's like telling you when it was born, and then you can see how old it is now. It is very useful to know that sometimes, for some books get very valuable when they are quite old, and some get rather useless. A book about electricity fifty years old would not be much good to-day to an electrical engineer; and if he saw a date like that, he would probably at once choose another book. As to the letters n.d., they mean no date, and show that we don't know in what year the book was printed, nor how old it is; we can only make a rough guess.

So much for the books which are not story books. Those which are stories do not have any date after them, nor any n.d. either. Some of them perhaps are not important enough to have the year of their birth recorded. Others are always being reprinted; and these reprints (which are like twin brothers and sisters) are often so exactly alike that one will do just as well as another, and it is quite confusing to distinguish between them.

Now we will take an example both of a story book and of one that is not a story book.

Across two Seas, by H. A. Forde.
Shore and Sea, by W. H. D. Adams. 1897.

From what I have said you will see that the first is a story. But the second, though its title is so similar, is not a story, but an account of some famous explorers and sea-captains,

Well, I expect that is enough explanation. There is only one more thing I want to remind you of. Don't forget those typewritten rules which are shown in the Library, about having clean hands when you are reading, and about treating the books carefully. We are glad for you to use them; but don't abuse them.

2.—To Adults.

The following list of books is the first instalment of the revised catalogue of the Central Lending Library. The books themselves have been re-examined and much weeding out has been done of volumes which are no longer suitable. Their place has to a large extent, however, been taken by new acquisitions.

The catalogue gives, in a single alphabet, author-entries and title-entries, it being thought that, for children, this would be the most convenient arrangement. In the case of biographies, the surname of the person concerned is given in the title-entry rather than such words as "Account" or "Life" of the person. Titles have often been shortened, and the words A, An, and The omitted, when occurring at the beginning of an entry.

The list is published in two sizes, of which the larger is uniform with other recent catalogues, whilst the smaller will slip into children's pockets.

Acknowledgment is gladly made of the careful work done by Messrs. C. J. Zanetti and D. W. Herdman, Assistant Librarians, in their preparation of this list.

BASIL ANDERTON.

Preface to 2nd Edition.

About 180 books have been added, and 90 discarded. Otherwise this edition is unchanged. There are in all 1,960 distinct books in the collection; or, including duplicates, 2,752. Of these 1,960 distinct books 683 are on miscellaneous subjects (elementary science, carpentry, and various children's hobbies, history, folk-lore, travels), and 1,277 are modern story books.
